J. OHLHAUSER'S CAR BURNS TUES.

Julius Ohlhauser experienced an accident to his car on Tuesday afternoon when his car was destroyed by fire. Mr. Ohlhauser had just returned from town and had his car in the garage on his farm. Later he went into the field and while away Mrs. Ohlhauser noticed smoke coming from the garage and immediately notified neighbors and then her husband. The car was taken out of the garage but it broke into flames immediately and was practically destroyed.

The car was a Chrysler 6 sedan and

SEED OATS 80c PER BUSHEL

An advertisement has appeared in this paper offering seed oats for sale. Mr. Hefferman, who is the owner of the oats has lowered the price to 80c per bushel on account of the low market value for grain. Anyone wishing to secure seed oats had better make arrangements while this offer is still open.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickers of Calgary, spent the week end visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Poxon. They returned to Calgary on Sunday evening.

WEEKLY HEALTH BULLETIN Issued by Red Cross Society

IMMUNIZATION

The past couple of weeks have brought thoughts of spring—spring when the good brown earth is turned over to the sun and the winds of heaven. When seed is sown with a conscious or unconscious prayer that good harvest may result. The farmer looks over his finished fields with pride and hope, having given unstintingly of his work and himself, that others may have bread, and the better to do this he buys the best seed he can afford. It must be clean—it must ripen early—and it must be immune to rust. The same with his stock, he buys none but the healthy animals and he is careful that they remain so.

Yet that careful man will laugh sceptically at the idea of his children being immunized against disease. His father and grandfather lived without vaccines and serums, so can he and his children. But can they? Is it worth the risk? Diphtheria is no respecter of persons, and typhoid or smallpox take toll of both child and adult. Every child should and can be protected from the above mentioned diseases. Are yours?

CANADIENS BRING HOCKEY TROPHY BACK TO CANADA

The Stanley Cup, emblematic of the hockey championship of the world, is back in Canada after resting for the past year in the United States.

The premier hockey trophy was captured by Les Canadiens, Montreal's team of "Flying Frenchmen," when they won two straight games from Boston, last year's champions, in the cup play-off. The first game was played in Boston, the Canadiens trouncing the Boston team to the tune of 3-0. The second game was another victory

POSSIBILITY OF ELECTION IN JUNE

BROWNLEE WILL NOT FORECAST
ELECTION DATE

Will Give People Ample Time to Prepare for Onslaught

EDMONTON, April 9.—Any statements that have been made in respect to a provincial general election during the current year are pure guess work, according to Premier J. E. Brownlee. Seen on Monday and asked if he would comment on the rumours circulating to the effect that an election was practically assured, for the latter part of June, the premier said:

"Contrary to statements that an election has been frequently mentioned in U.F.A. councils during the recent session, I may say that the subject was referred to only twice or three times at the most.

"The Government of this province reserves the right admittedly given to any Government, to decide when an election will be held.

"Should we at any time decide to hold an election, we shall give the public ample notice. But in the meantime I have nothing to say on the subject at all."

Pressed to say that an election would be held, the Premier refused to make any further comment.

There is one thing that can be stated definitely and that is that a provincial general election will be held not later than June 28, 1931, as the term of government will automatically expire then.

OLDEST PLAYER IN BASEBALL INSISTS ON OBSERVING OLD-TIME CUSTOMS

The name of Mike Ready went down on another contract. Mike Ready is the oldest baseball player in the United States and he is in baseball again.

It came about when word went through the studios that Richard Dix the Paramount star, was to start a picture of the baseball diamond, Ready who is 78, in some mysterious way, managed to get the tip ahead of them all. At the time, Dix was making "Easy Come, Easy Go," and wasn't thinking much about the forthcoming production.

Ready was, however, and there was not a day he didn't put in an appearance at the Paramount studio gate and wait for the arrival and departure of the star. On each occasion came the same question.

"Will you have a part for me?"

"We'll see," was the reply.

Dix saw a chance to use the old baseballer in the picture, "Warming Up," which will be shown at the Carbon Theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Ready took his first fling at baseball in the mustache days in 1872 and obtained a tryout with the Elgin, Ill. team. Then followed 17 years of work on the diamond. There were just 12 professional teams in the country.

Tiring of baseball after 17 years, Ready turned to the stage and for more than thirty years has been trouping.

Asked to take off his spectacles while being photographed, the old veteran scoffed. "Why?" he asked.

"Baseball players don't wear glasses," he was told.

"Bosh," was the retort, "we did in those days and by golly I will now."

for Les Canadiens with a 4-3 score, and won for them the championship of the world.

The Montreal team first defeated the Chicago Black Hawks and then the New York Rangers to get in the final play-off.

Sympathizer: "And did her father come between you?"

Jilted Lover: "No—behind me."

Welfare Worker: "And what are you here for, my man?"

The Stumbling Block

Whatever may be the outcome of the naval conference in session in London, and at the time of writing it is still problematical and obscure, the fact that leading statesmen of the world, engrossed, as they are, with many domestic and other problems, and carrying heavy responsibilities, have for months doggedly persevered in their efforts to find common ground upon which a reduction of armaments can be brought about, is, in itself, one of the most hopeful signs for world peace.

Not many years ago such a conference would have, long ere this, broken up in an open confession of failure, with national feelings more embittered than ever, and a still more feverish renewal of warlike preparations on the part of all nations. Even if the present conference does not succeed in reaching a formal and unanimous agreement, the persistency, the intensity with which those participating have sought for a solution is encouraging and full of hope for ultimate future success.

The proceedings of the conference as they have dragged along week after week, have proven the sincerity of the statements made by the various representatives at the opening session, namely, that they and the governments they represent are keenly desirous of reaching an agreement, that they are anxious to make future wars impossible, that they believe in the letter and spirit of the Kellogg peace pact, and to that end are willing to make what they consider sacrifices to achieve a reduction in armaments and a consequent lessening of the possibilities of war and of the burden of taxation imposed upon their people.

This sincerity of purpose has been demonstrated over and over again. When any particular formula or plan was found to be unacceptable in any particular to any one nation, the others sought for amendments that would meet the objections raised. When the objections urged were found to be insurmountable, that formula or plan was discarded, and something different brought forward. Step by step, in sub-conferences innumerable, by direct negotiations between those countries which were farthest apart in their views, difficulties were gradually overcome.

Just how much has been accomplished, the world does not yet know; perhaps little of a really definite nature. But the whole effect has been beneficial. It is beyond all question that the nations now understand and appreciate each other's viewpoints and difficulties better than ever before, because it is quite evident that the negotiations have been conducted with great frankness, and yet with an absence of that bitterness and ill-feeling which existed in past years. Whatever the present outcome, the way, we repeat, has been paved to ultimate success.

And what is the obstacle to immediate success, assuming that it cannot at this time be achieved? It is that the centuries-old racial dislikes, suspicions, superiority complexes, and religious differences still project themselves and live in this twentieth century of the Christian era. Each and every nation indignantly denies and rejects the idea that they entertain, desire or propose any policy or act of aggression against any other nation. But each and every nation is, nevertheless, demanding security against other nations. In a word, while professing their own honesty of purpose, they remain doubtful and suspicious of their neighbors.

Here in Canada we may find it somewhat difficult to understand this attitude, and be inclined to question the sincerity of those who adopt it. But if we pause for a moment and ponder over the problem a bit, we will, perhaps, come to appreciate the European viewpoint somewhat better. And in doing so we, too, may learn a lesson of importance to ourselves, our communities, and our Dominion.

After all, what is the chief cause of friction, ill-will, bitterness and suspicion right here in Canada, and in our own community? Does it not arise out of differences in racial origin, different languages employed, differing forms by and through which we worship the same God? Are we not suspicious and distrustful of our neighbors simply because their racial origin differs from our own, because their mother tongue is not ours, because their religious thought and church observances differ from ours? We feel that they should conform to our ideas and ways of thought, and because we feel this, we imagine that they, in turn, are trying to impose their ways upon us.

It is the same European nightmare in a somewhat milder form. We want and demand security. Instead of armies and navies, we place reliance in laws, regulations, prohibitions. France would bring all Europe to her way of thinking, Germany to her way. We, in Canada, seem to demand complete assimilation, absolute uniformity. It is the same principle. And it is a principle if persisted in, and carried to its logical conclusion, results in ill-feeling, bitterness and strife, and makes peace impossible of attainment.

A broader education, a truer appreciation of the fact that all men are brothers, that a man's a man for a' that, a nearer approach to the spirit of the Christ, is an essential of world disarmament and peace, just as it is an essential to community betterment and national peace and progress. Demands for security will only be unnecessary and die when we no longer entertain suspicions and fears of those against whom we would arm in one form or another.

Sixty-Five Years Of Service

Eighty-One-Year Old Woman Is Still On Job

—that of painting little iron toys and packing them for shipment. The woman who is believed to have the longest record of employment with one concern in Connecticut, is Miss Kate Ralph. She began work with the Stevens concern when sixteen.

Miss Ralph has walked the three miles from her home to her daily task every day of her working life. She is the picture of health.

Noted Flier Performs

Thrilling Exploit

Australian Ace Forces Machine To Rise In Forest Clearing

Captain Charles Kingsford D. Smith, the Australian ace who flew from the United States to Australia in 1928, has just performed one of the most thrilling exploits of his career.

He is now the director of an air line. Recently when one of the company's triple-engined machines made a forced landing in a forest clearing near Bonalbo, Northern New South Wales, it seemed that the plane could be moved only by being dismantled.

Smith went to the scene, repaired the damaged under-carriage, tied the plane's tail to a tree and set his engines going full speed. When the machine lifted from the ground a farmer cut the rope and the plane flashed away like a rocket.

Even then the straining plane, bucking like a broncho, could barely rise above the towering forest trees. A topmost bough tore the fabric from underneath the fuselage and the machine trembled like a wounded bird, but it kept up and Smith got it safely to the air-drome.

Crime In Ontario

Increases In Serious Crimes Shown In Provincial Police Report

Increases in several of the more serious crime categories were noted in the annual report of the Ontario provincial police which was tabled in the legislature. Prosecutions during 1929 totalled 13,158, an increase of 1,883 over the figures for the preceding year.

Increases were noted in the number of murders, manslaughter charges, offences against women, suicides, automobile fatalities and drownings. Last year there were 20 murders in the province, compared to 14 in 1928; 28 manslaughter charges, against 18; 83 suicides against 58, automobile fatalities totalled 248, while there were only 162 in 1928, and drownings increased from 144 to 191. Deaths from other causes numbered 188, compared to 243 in 1928.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

War Restrictions Raised

One of the last remaining relics of the Great War has been abolished by the League of Nations. This is the series of import and export restrictions which were enacted by the various nations during the war to prevent exportation of raw materials and manufactured articles necessary for them to carry on the conflict. As the years rolled by and the regulations were not repealed world trade was seriously hampered.

For years Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has ranked as a reliable worm preparation and it always maintains its reputation.

Linking Canada and Britain

British Post Office To Provide Direct Wireless Phone Service

Canada and Britain are to be linked by direct wireless telephone. The House of Commons recently debated the respective merits of the Marconi and the British post office wireless systems. Hon. H. B. Lees-Smith, postmaster-general, revealed that the Canadian government had expressed a desire for direct service.

The direct service will be provided by the post office. Arguing the general merits of the post office system as contrasted with Marconi, the postmaster-general said the lower costs of its aerials enabled it to give three wave lengths to each Dominion. The Marconi system provided two to most of the Dominions and only one for Australia.

The king and queen of the Belgians have defied the reputed curse of the Pharaohs. Thereafter the king walked nearly two miles from his yacht into Karnak.

GOLF

Golf is increasing in popularity in the United States insular possessions and also in the Orient. The Emperor of Japan has several times invited Bobby Jones to visit the kingdom and give an exhibition of his skill over Nipponese courses. The Mikado even expressed his willingness to dispatch a cruiser to one of the Pacific Coast ports to convey the Georgian to Japan, in style. Jones recently declared he might make the trip some time within the next few years. With Hagen planning a junket to Australia and the Orient our star golfers are becoming missionaries of the game and it only is a matter of a few years until bunkers will be thrown up along the furthest outposts of civilization—which will leave only Mars to be converted to the pleasures and miseries of Scotland's curse.

The time of making garden is near at hand and it is also time to pen up the chickens. There is perhaps, nothing that causes so much hard feelings in a locality as for chickens to wander on a neighbor's premises and garden.
Some say they do not do any harm.
That makes no difference, your neighbor does not want to be annoyed with your chickens and you should not cause trouble by allowing your fowls to run at large. A hen that will not stay in the enclosure will usually make a fine Sunday dinner.

We are generally losers in the end
if we stop to refute all the backbitings and gossipings we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous so long as we do not stop to expostulate and scold.
Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves and by our own actions and not by others. They may injure us for a time, but public opinion and justice will correct all groundless slander if we do not furnish fuel to the flame by taking valuable time to deny the charges.

Oh, dear to our hearts are the sad days of springtime, when the annual housecleaning recurs to our view, when we sleep on the sofa and eat off the mantle, in the atmosphere strongly suggestive of glue; we think of the stove-pipe, the soot that came from it and sweet expressions so fluent and fine, but the saddest and most bitter of all recollections is the dusty old carpet that hung on the line. Oh, that dusty old carpet, that rusty old carpet, that musty old carpet that hung on the line! We remember how, armed with a lithe flagellator, in the morning we blithely advanced to the fray. In the muscular pride of our heart, little dreaming that cleaning that carpet would take the whole day; we sweat and we kicked and our hand badly blistered, while the sun lent his countenance, warmly benign, but the harder we pounded the more it was needed by that dusty old carpet that hung on the line! Oh, that dusty old carpet, that musty old carpet, that rusty old carpet that hung on the line.

WHY NOT TELL THE PEOPLE

The Alberta legislature make many laws and introduce amendments to other laws, that make it rather difficult for the average man to keep in touch with the multitude of restrictions placed upon the statute books.
Not long ago auto drivers' licenses were added to the list, and there are probably many people who are not aware of such a law. Threshers' licenses must be secured, shooting licenses must be paid for, and the farmer cannot even sell eggs direct to the consumer without infringing on the Alberta law. It looks as if we are tremendously burdened with laws and restrictions that make it difficult to live a law-abiding life. However, with these laws included in our statute books, why not the government appraise the people of their laws by publishing a synopsis of same in the country newspapers?

As a consequence of the lack of publicity many law-abiding citizens are innocently violating the laws of the land. The same way of advising the public of these new pieces of legislation is through the press of the province.—Innisfail Province.

VILLAGE OF CARBON SETS EXAMPLE TO CALGARY

(The Calgary Herald)

The Herald is informed that an official of the Town Planning Commission admits that only two small towns in Alberta have agreed so far under the Provincial Town Planning Act.
They are Carbon and Springbank, two small centres. Calgary is asked to line up with them in adopting the act. Edmonton, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and all the larger towns have shown commendable hesitation in submitting themselves to outside jurisdiction in their construction plans.

It begins to look as if the promoters of the Town Planning Act have selected this city to be the "goat."
They have already held up several promising building projects at a time when employment is mostly needed. They have notified outside capital that extreme theories find a fertile ground in this environment. They evidently believe that Calgary is ready to line up with Carbon and Spring-bank against the more conservative policy of the rest of the province.

You can depend on advertised products

Advertising is the most powerful searchlight known to business.
It focuses the attention of a community or a continent on a particular product. It gives that product the advantages of a widespread test by the buying public. But it cannot persuade that public to buy any article it has tested and found wanting. Manufacturers and merchants know this. They know also that advertising an unworthy product does only one thing: It brings magnified attention to its deficiencies. Therefore, before they undertake extensive or consistent advertising, they make sure that their product is right.

Consistent advertising is your best assurance of value and worth. It is fair evidence that the advertising is offering a good product which has been thoroughly tested and approved.

Better Feed Standards

New Regulations Require a More Careful Elimination Of Weed Seeds

Better feed oats and barley is assured by the new regulations of the seed branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which require a more careful elimination of weed seeds. Under these new regulations, while wild oats and other grains present are taken into consideration, the quality of the grain itself now mainly determines the grade.

In the past there have been frequent complaints, especially from the eastern feeders, of the excess of weed seeds contained in feed grain from the west. Under the grain inspection practices now in force even the lowest grades of feed oats and barley may have not more than 3 per cent. of weed seeds.

With this new system of inspection in operation, eastern feeders will be able to buy oats and feed barley on certificate, and with much greater assurance as to the cleanliness and quality of the grain so purchased.

Apart from the Indian States there are probably many more millionaires in British India than in America, and they are all, or nearly all, Indian. British Medical Association

More Funds Required To Finance Big Meeting To Be Held In Winnipeg

The committee of medical men in Winnipeg who are in charge of the arrangements for the meeting of the British Medical Association in that city next summer, have requested Manitoba members of parliament, particularly Dr. J. P. Howden, of St. Boniface, to ask the Federal Government for more financial assistance.

The meeting of the British Medical Association will be an event of historic importance. It is 24 years since the association met in Canada, the last occasion being in 1906 when the meeting took place in Toronto.

It is estimated that the cost of looking after the delegates, providing entertainment for them and suitable accommodation for their sessions, will be $60,000. It is understood here that this does not cover the expenses of the delegates in any way, shape or form. Each delegate will come from Great Britain at his own expense.

So far the Federal Government has agreed to give $20,000 to the committee. It is believed that the provincial government of Manitoba is giving $10,000. And the city of Winnipeg $10,000. This still leaves $20,000 to be found. The Canadian Medical fraternity are subscribing privately to a fund to be used for the meeting, but it is thought that in order to make the event certain of success a further Federal grant is desirable. Dr. Howden, probably will ask for a supplementary vote of from $5,000 to $10,000.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

Golden Text: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto Me; for to such belongeth the kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 19. 14.

Lesson: Matthew 18.1-14; 19.13-15. Devotional Reading: Psalm 24.1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Kingdom Of Heaven Is Entered By the Childlike, 18.1-4 In answer to the disciples question, "Who then, is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?" Jesus called to him a little child (possibly Peter's, if they were in Peter's house at Capernaum at the time), and putting him in the midst of the disciples said, "Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." The double Greek negative in the last clause is most emphatic: far from being the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven, they were in danger of never entering it. They must turn from their wrong ambition and jealousy, and become unpretentious, humble as little children. A child has no thought about greatness. "Jesus does not say that the childlike spirit is inherently better than the spirit of the man. He does not promise that it shall possess or govern the Kingdom. He affirms only that it is the condition of entering the Kingdom. It is not that the child is better than the man, but that the child stands at the gate of the ideal and takes the first step toward the Christian character. Docility, receptivity, open-mindedness, the eager listening spirit of the little child—this is the polar opposite of the unteachable, satiated, closed heart of the Pharisee, and as the latter blocks the way to the Kingdom, so the former opens it. Better things than childhood has to offer are to be gained through the discipline and stress of life, yet entrance to the Kingdom is attained by no other door than the unspoiled, natural, spontaneous spirit of the child, and many a sophisticated and unteachable life will find a shock of surprise that it has lost the key."—F. G. Peabody.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. LIQUOR EXPORT BILL OPPOSED IN THE SENATE

Ottawa, Ont.—A declaration by Senator Charles E. Tanner, of Halifax, that in his opinion the government bill to prohibit liquor clearances to shipments destined for the United States appeared to have been "dictated from Washington," featured discussion of this measure in the Senate.

The entire time of the Senate during a brief sitting was devoted to discussion of the bill. Senator Tanner occupied the major part of the time in a lengthy speech supporting the Conservative amendment to the motion for second reading.

This amendment which was moved by Senator W. B. Willoughby, Conservative leader in the Senate, asks that the bill be not read a second time at present, "but that it be referred to a special committee, to be selected by the Senate, for the purpose of first obtaining information as to the effect the passing of the bill would have on the economic, national and international conditions and relations of Canada."

Senator Tanner asserted that the bill could commit Canada to a policy of the prevention of liquor export to the United States.

"The more we give these people, the more they want," said Senator Tanner, with reference to the United States. As far as the government of the United States was concerned he considered it both "relentless and selfish." The United States, he declared, always got the best of any bargain that it entered into with Canada.

"Are they taking our interests into consideration in the tariffs they are framing?" asked Senator Tanner, in elaborating on his declaration that the United States consequently looked after its own interest exclusively. "How about the Chicago diversion? Are we getting any nearer to a solution of that?"

Senator Tanner said that the United States representatives in London today were saying: "Here we are. If you care to come to our terms there'll be an agreement." The senator expressed admiration for the point of view which he attributed to the United States. They were looking after their own interests, and he wished that the government of Canada would take a similar attitude in respect to the Dominion.

There were two other speakers. Senator Nathaniel Curry of Nova Scotia, said he would not vote for the bill. In his opinion withdrawal of Canada's liquor exports from the United States would not affect the situation in that country. Canada exported about two per cent. of the liquor consumed in the United States. Illicit manufacturers would very soon make up that deficiency.

Jews In Quebec Are Granted Separate School Rights

Quebec, Que.—By a vote of 52 to 5 the Quebec Legislative Assembly approved of giving separate schools to the Jewish people on the Island of Montreal.

Hon. Athanase David, provincial secretary, explained the bill, and said it spoke for the attitude of toleration which this province has always taken as regards minorities. Premier Tachereau made it clear he stands against the neutral school, and for this he also favored the bill. He hoped if Jewish schools are established they will be along lines of good Canadian thought.

Ottawa.—Canada has received $19,151,436 in payment of war reparations. Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state, informed the House of Commons in reply to a question from Earl Lawson (Con., York West). The question also asked the amount paid out of reparations for claims awarded by the reparations commission. The reply to this was that no sums were paid out of the amount received for reparations. Payments were paid under the provisions of the reparation payment act.

Question Of General Election Discussed

But No Official Statement Is Issued For Press

Ottawa, Ont.—The question of a general election was discussed at a recent caucus of the Liberal party.

While no official statement was issued at the conclusion of the meeting, it is understood Premier Mackenzie King stated that he was no more decided whether to hold an election this year or in 1931, than he was three months ago. But, at the same time, it is said the prime minister warned members they should begin preparations and continue to make preparations.

The views of a number of private members were expressed; and, it is understood, that in the course of this discussion a suggestion was made that August 25 next, might possibly be the date for an election.

Fire Hazard Threatens Lives and Property Of Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A great gusher roared like a young volcano in the backyard of Oklahoma City, while men made futile efforts to control a spout of gas and oil unleashed in the race for riches.

Reward Of $500 Is Offered For Conviction Of Offenders

Neudorf, Sask.—The municipality of McLeod has offered a reward of $500 for the conviction of the parties believed to be waging a Vendetta against Louis Ulmer, a farmer of this district and his family. Last September, when the farm was in possession of Ulmer's father, four horses and two cows were killed in a peculiarly cruel manner, and subsequently the granary was burned down, 1,400 bushels of wheat being destroyed. Recently two more horses, a cow and a calf were killed outright and four horses badly injured.

Dublin, Ireland.—William T. Cosgrave was re-elected by the Dail Eireann to serve as president of the Irish Free State executive council. He thus maintained his ascendancy over Eamonn de Valera, campaigner for an "Irish Republic."

Cosgrave who had been defeated by a narrow margin recently on an old age pensions bill, was chosen for his old post by the Dail after De Valera and the Laborite leader, T. J. O'Connell, had been thrust aside in turn.

The successive votes were:

For De Valera: 54 for, 93 opposed.

For O'Connell: 13 for, 78 opposed.

For Cosgrave: 80 for, 55 opposed.

Doukhobors On Rampage

Eight Fanatics Stage Nude Demonstration at Nelson, B.C.

Nelson, B.C.—A nude demonstration Sunday by eight non-community Doukhobors, who interrupted the preaching of Peter Veregin at the annual meeting of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, at Brilliant, was followed by further disorders Monday night by about 200 who did not go to the extent of disrobing. The provincial police from Nelson were called out to maintain order.

The demonstration resulted in a committee being appointed by the conference to interview the malcontents and offer them a tract of land in the Slocan Valley for their use, provided they would agree to be law abiding, to send their children to the schools, and to pay lawful taxes. This offer was rejected by the disturbers, who demanded the privilege of living in close association with the community without obligation to pay rates or obey the laws. They were then requested to leave.

Folks Get the Blues When It Is Mid-Winter In the Arctic

Winnipeg, Man.—All the top-of-the-world folk get the blues when it's mid-winter in the arctic. This is the comment of William Murray, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company post at Herschel Island, off the north shore of Canada. He refers to the brief period when daytime is a generous word for two hours of murky twilight.

From November 26 until January 16, observes Mr. Murray, no sun is visible at Herschel Island. Little or no travelling is done although there is fairly good light at mid-day, when a red glare appears in the southern sky. For days before the sun's return natives stand eagerly on top of their igloos seeking first glimpse of Old Sol.

Reserve Bank For Australia

If Established, Will Have Ten Million Dollars Capital

Canberra, Australia.—Hon. E. G. Theodore, Commonwealth treasurer, introduced in the House of Assembly a bill to create a central reserve bank similar to the Central Reserve Bank of South Africa. The bank will have a capital of $10,000,000, drawn from the Commonwealth Bank, and the board will include representatives of Labor.

The proposal marks another step in the Labor government's comprehensive program, for restoration of the economic and financial position of Australia, a program which also includes a compulsory wheat-marketing pool.

STUDY VARIOUS PROBLEMS OF GRAIN INDUSTRY

Ottawa, Ont.—Three fellowships established by the Canadian Wheat Pool to further scientific research in problems of the Western Canadian grain industry, each having an annual value of $1,200 have been awarded by the National Research Council.

As announced the successful candidates are:

R. G. Dunlop, B.Sc., University of Saskatchewan, who will undertake research in the Department of Field Crops and Plant Biochemistry of the University of Alberta.

H. R. Sallans, B.Sc., University of Saskatchewan, who will undertake research in the Department of Wheat Chemistry, of the University of Saskatchewan.

C. A. Winkler, B.Sc., University of Manitoba, who will undertake research in the Department of Agricultural Chemistry of the University of Manitoba.

Sixty-five persons have been successful in securing a national research council post-graduate research scholarship, tenable in Canadian universities during the year 1930-31. This year considerably more than twice as many applications were received as there were awards available, says a statement issued recently by the Research Council.

Three classes of post-graduate scholarships are awarded, known as bursaries, studentships and fellowships, having an annual value of $750, $1,000 and $1,200 respectively.

These awards are provided to enable Canadian students who have graduated with distinction from a university to continue their training in science until they have qualified for a Ph.D. degree in order to build up a corps of thoroughly trained research workers for service in Canadian industries, universities and in the technical departments of the federal and provincial governments.

Famine Takes Heavy Toll

Hundred Die Every Day In Chinese Province Of Shensi

New York, N.Y.—People are dying at the rate of one hundred a day in the plains of the Shensi province in the famine stricken area of China, according to a report received from Mrs. Philip S. Dutton, at Taiku, in North China.

Mrs. Dutton, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., estimates that by the beginning of summer two-thirds of the population will be dead. The inhabitants, she says, are tearing down their houses and selling the material to obtain money for food. In every yard is a pile of leaves which the owners are eating. When the leaves are gone they will die. Mrs. Dutton says.

The Problems Which Confront Agriculture In The West Now Are Vitally Aggressive

Prof. W. W. Swanson, M.A., Ph.D., professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, addressed members of the Canadian Club at a luncheon in Regina recently. Dr. Swanson took as his subject, "Wheat and Changing Agriculture."

"I think we should think less of our cherished principles as to how we can organize the life of the world on a co-operative basis and come back to hard realities," Dr. Swanson declared. He suggested the establishment of a wheat council or body composed of men representing the private individual as well as members of the Wheat Pool to determine a selling policy which would give the farmers the greatest net returns for what they produced from the soil.

"It is the duty of all of us to attempt to strengthen and maintain the morale of the Wheat Pool, to get the farmers behind this selling agency, because if it should collapse at this time, it would be fatal to the economic life of the west," he continued.

Describing wheat as the life-blood of commerce, the plasma of society, Dr. Swanson deplored the tactics of pessimists who were destroying the morale of the country rather than attempting to build up the strength of the faith of the community in wheat possibilities.

"I believe it is a good deal more important to explore all avenues of co-operation in our own country before we turn to the foreigner," Dr. Swanson remarked in stressing the importance of securing the best business brains and abilities to be placed at the disposal of the farming community."

The problems confronting agriculture in the west today were vitally aggressive, according to Dr. Swanson. A profound change had come over the texture of economic life, due to the introduction of power on the farms, the mechanization of the farms and the spread of the "city point of view" and the urbanization of the country.

"The agriculturist faces a battle today in which every ounce of courage, energy and morale is required to achieve success," Dr. Swanson pointed out.

The fundamental effect on marketing in Canada of what occurs in the wheat markets of the United States was outlined by Dr. Swanson, who saw in the artificially built up co-operatives of that country the creation of a wheat surplus in that republic which, in turn, would affect the Canadian markets.

"Never under any circumstances can we avoid the factors of demand and supply. Problems we face in Canada are only part of a world-wide problem," Dr. Swanson asserted. "We must analyse the factors of demand and supply so that we can build up a marketing structure of stone and iron rather than straw."

Pleading that a bond of sympathy be established and strengthened between the men of the soil and the city-bred, Dr. Swanson also urged the maintenance of a rural point of view. "Our wishes, our hearts and our hopes are bound up in the rural point of view. If we lose this vision, we lose all that the pioneers of this west have built up."

Dr. Swanson saw, not the tragedy of wasted natural resources, but the waste of human life on the farms in the boys and the girls who were not to get an education this year, an opportunity to broaden themselves spiritually, traceable to the economic conditions of the country today as affecting agriculture.

The loyal marketing of wheat based on the real price of the world and the staunch support of the men who believe in the west, would build up the type of democracy required, in the opinion of Dr. Swanson.

Kootenay National Park

The Kootenay National Park in the province of British Columbia is unique among the other Canadian reservations. It was created originally, not so much for its own sake, as to preserve, in perpetuity, the beauty of the natural landscape and the charm of native animal and plant life along the route of the Banff-Windermere highway, the first motor road across the central Canadian Rockies.

Grand Duke's Tour

The religious consciousness of the great nations of the world is awakening to the evils of the Bolshevik regime in Russia, according to Grand Duke Alexander, who is making a lecture tour of Canada and the United States. Travelling over Canadian Pacific, his tour in this country will include visits to Winnipeg and Vancouver and from the latter city he will go south to California and thence back to New York. In the two seasons he has been lecturing he has delivered 52 addresses in 32 Canadian and American cities.

Saskatoon Board Of Trade Announces Interesting Competition

To encourage the growing of good seed, and to stimulate efforts to produce prize-taking exhibits for the World Grain Show, at Regina, in 1932, the Saskatoon Board of Trade, has announced a $350 competition for wheat grown in 1930, to be exhibited some time during the winter, possibly at the 1931 winter fair. This will be open to farmers within a radius of 50 miles from Saskatoon.

Applications for seed should be sent immediately to Commissioner J. H. Holmes, at the Board of Trade offices.

Prize money will be divided as follows: First prize, $75; second, $50; third, $40; fourth, $25; fifth, $30; sixth, $25; seventh, $20; eighth, $15; ninth, $10; and 10 successive prizes of $5 each.

Could Prove It

"How's business?" asked a business man.

"Reviving," a second business man answered. "We got a hundred-thousand-franc order yesterday."

"Get out; I don't believe you," said the first man.

"It's the truth," said the other. "I'll show you the cancellation."

Berlin will hold an international leather fair, next fall.

General Currie Presents Strong Case For Great War Veterans Before Committee At Ottawa

The War Veterans' Allowance Act was social legislation, while the Pensions Act was a contractual relationship between the people of Canada and the soldier, consequently the two should not be confused, nor should the former be regarded as denying to the disabled ex-service man his right to claim for pension under the latter. This was one of the distinctions drawn by General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., former commander of the Canadian Corps, who appeared before the special parliamentary committee on returned soldiers' problems at Ottawa, and laid in front of that body the case for the ex-soldier.

Sir Arthur's presentation of the case on behalf of his former comrades created a deep impression, which was strengthened by the volume of support accorded to his views by the numerous speakers who followed him.

The wishes of the people of Canada with respect to the treatment of disabled soldiers had not been carried out, Sir Arthur said, in the manner desired by the people themselves. He did not attribute this failure to the pensions commissioners or to any of those vested with the administration of the act, but rather to the interpretation of the act and to the faulty machinery set up for its operation. The former corps commander entered a plea for the "burned out" veteran, for whom no provision was made. He stressed the impossibility of such a man proving conclusively that his disabilities were due to war service, and equally was it impossible for the pensions board to prove that they were not. The responsibility in this regard should be shared and in every case the man should get the benefit of the doubt.

He had no brief for the malingering, the man who claimed a pension and was not entitled to it, nor had any war veteran any sympathy with such a "leadswinger." But that did not alter the fact that a condition of dissatisfaction existed among the veterans and among the people of Canada, and that situation had to be faced.

Sir Arthur pointed to a number of defects in the pensions act, the chief of which was that it was a "legal document" and few returned soldiers understood such documents. The pensions board stood in the relationship of a court charged with the administration of this enactment and did not have the proper facilities at its disposal for the carrying out of this task. He suggested that the pensions commission be made an itinerant body. At present the board is stationary in Ottawa, while the appeal board is a travelling court. The situation should be reversed. He also asked that greater facilities be extended to soldiers to prepare their claims.

The former corps commander was emphatic in his opposition to the war veterans' allowance act being administered both by the pensions board and by the departmental committee, proposed by the bill. He cast no reflections upon the personnel of either body; but in the former case the pensions board would be dealing with something entirely outside their scope since the act was social legislation, while in the latter case departmental officers were subject to the direction of the minister who was himself subjected to many importunities. He thought that the Canadian Legion could administer the allowance to better advantage.

In the course of the hearing recently numerous ex-soldiers spoke. All represented various organizations; but in this case the soldiers had become unified and all their societies would have a common spokesman in Col. L. A. LaFleche, D.S.O., M.C., Dominion president of the Canadian Legion. A number of specific cases were cited wherein considerable hardship with no compensation was disclosed.

Railway Officials Promoted

Canadian National Railways Makes Operating Changes On Prairies

To meet the vacancy caused by the promotion of W. I. Munro, superintendent of the Portage Division, Winnipeg, to general superintendent of the Alberta District, at Edmonton, a number of changes in the operating department of the Canadian National Railways were announced recently in a circular issued by A. A. Tisdale, general manager, and approved by A. E. Warren, vice-president of the western region. The changes are effective as from March 12, and are as follows:

I. A. Macpherson, superintendent, Saskatoon, to be superintendent of the Regina Division.

J. A. Rogers, assistant superintendent at Saskatoon, to be superintendent at Prince Albert.

C. H. Brown, assistant superintendent at Edmonton, to be assistant superintendent at Saskatoon.

G. H. Linney, assistant superintendent at North Battleford, to be assistant superintendent at Edmonton.

Millions Spent By Tourists

Statistics issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that the tourist trade in Canada reached a new high level in 1929, resulting in an estimated expenditure by such tourists of approximately $300,000,000, an increase of more than $34,000,000 over 1928.

There are 3,665 things that might cause the queer rattle in your car, but it always takes $18.50 to make the right one confess.

"I forgot you didn't know I was here to supper. I invited myself; and we ate in the front room so as not to miss any of the excitement! I washed the dishes while Grandma got ready for our spree. I tell you, she's some sport!"

Charman joined in his laugh, though what she felt was a sudden desire for tears. She couldn't have said just why, but a wave of tenderness for this old friend had overwhelmed her. Jim was so kind, she told herself. What other man would have washed those dishes just to save her a little trouble? What other man would have jollied an old lady all the evening, when he could have been with the young folks at the church festival? What did it matter if he was a bit under his mother's thumb?

Possibly the young man felt her yielding in some subtle way, for he said suddenly: "The moon will be full tomorrow night, won't it? Will you go for a ride, Charman?"

They both turned at a sound behind them. The new doctor stood in the doorway, hesitating to interrupt, perhaps, but at any rate he came forward bravely and dropped the gray crepe shawl over the girl's shoulders.

"Your grandmother says you'll 'take your death o' cold,'" he explained, with a grin that made him very boyish; and Charman replied, laughing:

"Did she think I was going to stay out till morning? Good-night, Jim. Thanks for everything; and of course I'll go for a ride tomorrow evening. I'd love it."

Jim, who had been cursing the innocent doctor beneath his breadth, and thinking that Charman hadn't noticed his invitation, went off in such a daze that he barely escaped colliding with a lamp post.

Grandma Davis seemed none the worse for her outing. She was up for breakfast, and eager to hear the news.

"You tell me everything about the supper," she demanded, as Charman poured the coffee. "Did you have a good time, Doctor? And was that Darling girl upset because her young man didn't show up? Did she wear the hat?"

"She did," answered the doctor. "In fact, it was the first thing that caught my eye when we arrived. It's not a bad hat, really, and, as your granddaughter pointed out, it is becoming; but if the young lady was disturbed because you cut her out last night, she concealed it well."

Charman threw him a laughing glance.

"Miss Darling found fresh hunting, Grandma," she explained. "Poor Jimmy was forgotten."

"You flatter me," retorted the doctor, arising to make her sweeping bow; while Grandma exclaimed as he resumed his seat:

"Do you mean to say that she made eyes at you, Doctor? She must be brazen!"

"Am I so impossible as all that?" he asked reproachfully.

Grandma shook her head as she went on: "But you're a doctor, even if you haven't got one foot in the grave yet, and—and dignified."

"Good Lord!" he cried, disgusted, "I didn't suspect it!"

"For consolation, let me add that you are not too dignified," smiled Charman. "Surely not enough so to resent the advances of—"

"Charman," reproved her grandmother, "you shouldn't talk so—so freely to the doctor. Of course he's dignified. A doctor has to be or folks wouldn't take his medicine. Even Edward Howe is dignified when he's a mind to be; though I remember years ago when—well, maybe it isn't nice for me to tell it, but I remember when he threw a spit ball at the teacher. It was at District Four."

"I venture to guess that the teacher deserved it," said John Carter, his eyes brimming with fun.

"That was the worst of it," went on Grandma seriously, "she didn't, though no one would have guessed it till she burst crying. She'd been snapping the children's heads off for two days, and when Edward threw the spit ball, sort of to relieve everybody's feelings as well as his, it was the last straw. She began to cry, and come to find out her mother was sick and she was worried most to death—afraid to ask leave to go home at that time o' year for fear she'd lose her job, and feeling dreadfully. She was so stirred up she just burst out the whole story to us children. I suppose she hardly knew what she was doing, and it was a relief to say what was in her mind."

"Well, you better believe that boy was ashamed of himself. He apologized right before us all. And he patted that poor woman on the shoulder, for all the world the way, years after, I've seen him pat his patients when he was sorry for 'em. Mercy! how

A Public Danger.

Caught Disease On the HANDS!

Skin disease threatens us every day. Invisible germs of blood-poison, eczema, etc., are waiting to infect the least cut or sore place. The money you use carries germs—you get them on the handles, rails and straps of the trains and street cars, and in a score of other ways. Solely through Zam-buk, Mr. Henry C. Davis, of South 17th Street, Kansas City, U.S.A., has just escaped a virulent type of eczema, contracted, he suspects, through use of public towels. "I had medical advice," he says, "tried in addition all sorts of so-called eczema remedies, without finding the hoped-for relief. Zam-buk treatment soon gave positive results. It took away the painful irritation and quickly purified and healed the deep troublesome sores."

clear it all comes back! Kate Knowles (she was George K's aunt and the girl that Edward Howe was engaged to later), was crying in sympathy; and so was Lizzie Baker, though she wasn't but six years old. But Deacon Howe was on the school board then, and when Edward went home and told the story, his father gave the teacher a month's leave, and she went off that very afternoon."

"Did her mother die?" asked Charman, who invariably became absorbed in Grandma's reminiscences.

"No, childy, she got better and came to live in Wickfield. They were real nice folks, and stayed here till the daughter got a school in Portland. Dear me! here I wanted to hear about the festival, and instead I've been talking every minute, boring you to death most likely, too. Are you going to finish fixing the doctor's office this morning, Charman?"

"I'm going to fix it myself," declared the doctor, "if your granddaughter will tell me what to do. I'm thrilled at that office, Mrs. Davis. It's a dream come true."

"Maybe you'd better call me Grandma to start with," said the old lady. "I don't know when any one's said Mrs. to me, and it don't sound natural. Everybody calls me Grandma, even Edward Howe who was only two years back o' me in school. Folks in Wickfield might not know who you meant if you said Mrs. Davis."

"It's very good of you to let me—Grandma," answered the young man, smiling. "It makes me feel like one of the family."

"That's how I want you to feel, sonny," she responded; while Charman laughed and said:

"Is that the way to address a dignified physician? I'm surprised at you, Grandma! Soon as I get these dishes out of the way, Doctor, I'll join you in the office; and in the meantime you can carry the biggest books up attic. By afternoon you'll be ready for your first patient. Aren't you thrilled at the thought?"

"I shall be more thrilled when he arrives!" answered John Carter. "Here's hoping I don't starve while waiting for him."

Grandma shook her head. "I never was one to be a wet-blanket; but you may as well swallow the fact right off that Wickfield folks are set in their ways, and they're used to Edward Howe. Isn't that some one in the shop? I heard the door open. You lend me a hand, sonny, and I'll see to 'em so Charman can get right to work."

A half hour later when Charman looked in at the new office, John Carter was unpacking a box of his own books and placing them on the shelves.

"Let me hand them to you," she suggested. "You know where you want to put them, and I don't." She glanced at the back of a big volume, and said, so soberly that the doctor laughed: "'Gray's Anatomy.' What a horrible title! Do you know, I can't help feeling sorry for these shelves, supporting such dry subjects for years and years. I think I'll present you with some detective stories, or something jazzy in the way of novels. A risqué volume might be a relief to these poor shelves after being so deadly respectable for fifty years. First the ponderous law weighing them down, and now—"

She sighed despairingly as she wiped the dust from "Osler's Practice," and held it out.

"Bring on your jazz," invited John Carter as he reached for the despised volume. "I dare say I need it, after a pretty steady diet of the other thing. But I believe you'll find one or two less hopeless subjects in that last box. Let's empty it here on the desk, and then I'll carry off the packing cases and we can clear up."

When he returned she was smiling over "Pepys' Diary," and remarked wickedly: "I think I'll take this in to Grandma. I'd like to see how she'd react to it, wouldn't you?"

"Hasn't she read it?"

"I don't believe so, and her comments might be valuable! I'm glad to see that you're a devotee of 'Sherlock Holmes,' — and Dickens. I think there's hope for you despite the dignity that Grandma mentioned."

He actually flushed.

"Say, do I put on airs—behave like an idiot or anything?"

Charman laughed.

"I seem to have got a 'rise' out of you," she said. "Don't worry. I haven't detected any airs, nor the first sign of idiocy. In Grandma's day a doctor never appeared in public without a full beard and a frock coat. She was shocked to death when Doctor Howe began to dress like a civilized being and shaved off his whiskers; but in her eyes he can do no wrong. Because he brought you here you'll appear the ideal M.D. to her, dignity and all. That's why she was appalled at the brazenness of—of the green hat!"

The doctor laughed as he replied: "Poor old hat! It seems to have stirred up a tempest in a teapot."

"It is a new hat," corrected Charman, "and a tempest isn't a patch on what it has stirred up."

He raised his eyes quickly.

"What do you mean? You sound subtle; and I warn you that subtlety is a quality I can't abide."

HEALTHY CHILDREN ALWAYS SLEEP WELL

The healthy child sleeps well and during its waking hours is never cross but always happy and laughing and spreads sunshine to the whole household. It is only the sickly child that is cross and peevish. Mothers if your children do not sleep well; if they are cross and cry a great deal do not scold them. That is their way of telling you they are ill. When baby is like this give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be well and happy again. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful sleep. They are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates and other harmful drugs and may be given to the new-born babe with perfect safety and good results.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders, the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.

Produces Artificial Fever

Scientist Tells Of Possibilities Of New Discovery

Discovery of a new short length wave, that may easily be developed into a death ray, but also may have great curative properties, was announced, at Philadelphia, by E. L. Manning, of the General Electric Company's research laboratories.

Speaking before the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, Mr. Manning said:

"We have learned to build vacuum tubes which will broadcast such a short length wave that people in the neighborhood will have their blood temperatures raised. This means that we can produce artificial fever and hold it under control, within any limits we choose."

Manning stated that if natural fever was "an attempt on the part of the body to kill off bacteria that attack it, as is believed, this new discovery may prove of startling value in the treatment of disease."

The ray, Manning said, could easily be used to induce such a high fever in human beings that it would result in death.

"We are experimenting with rabbits and rats," said Mr. Manning, "and the results are most encouraging. Diseases corresponding to those of humans appear to have been eliminated by these artificial fevers," he said.

Little Helps For This Week

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee."—Psalm lv. 22.

Child of my love, lean hard. And let Me feel the pressure of thy care. I know thy burden, child; I shaped it. Poised it in mine own hand, and made no proportion In its weight to thine unaided strength;

For even as I laid it on I said, I shall be near, and while she leans on Me

This burden shall be Mine, not hers, So shall I keep My child within the circling arms Of Mine own love. Here lay it down, nor fear To impose it upon a shoulder which upholds

The government of worlds. Yet closer come.

Thou art near enough; I would embrace thy care, So I might feel My child reposing on my breast, Thou lovest Me? I know it. Doubt not then,

But loving Me lean hard. —Paul Pastnor.

He that takes his own cares upon himself loads himself in vain with an uneasy burden.—Bishop Hall.

All business houses need more or less printed matter, all of which is within the possibilities of the local printer. Yet how prone many are to pass up the home printer and let the orders go to city offices which have no interest whatever in rural communities except to get printing orders and the cash to pay for them.
